Great deals & Coupons at Golfworththedrive.com

The winter golf season is almost over. Could the weather be any worse? It seems as though we have had very few decent weekends to play this fall and winter. Oh well, everyone complains about the weather but none of us can do anything about it.

The LMGA (Lexington Men's Golf Association) has been playing some tournaments (despite what was said in the paragraph above) and has its next event scheduled for the last Sunday of this short month, February 22nd. If you haven't played in an event for awhile or if this would be your first one, all of us would like to see you here that morning. The event will start around 10:00 AM and will be a shotgun start if possible. The sign up is in the shop so stop by or call us at 248-3950.

Speaking of the LMGA, please go look at the new parts of our home website lexingtongolfclub.com. We have a new calendar that shows all of the events for the entire 2009 season.

We also have a page dedicated to the LMGA that has pictures of players and the results from the last event. To be a member of the LMGA, all we need is for you to do is to go to the pro shop, give us your name and address and pay the annual dues of $30.00. In return all LMGA members receive a Carolinas / USGA Handicap, ability to play in all LMGA events, the CGA quarterly magazine and special golf shop discounts on balls and gloves. In addition, the Golf Shop is hosting Road Trip Thursdays this year. The first event is scheduled for Thursday March 19th and is only open to current LMGA members. More information will be available soon.

In headline news..... We should see our new cart fleet sometime very soon. We appreciate the inconvenience that many of you have put up with during the last couple of months, but it should all be over very soon.
